

NoodleTools: How to Cite

Hillgrove High School

NoodleTools will help you cite your sources, create an annotated bibliography and a reference page.

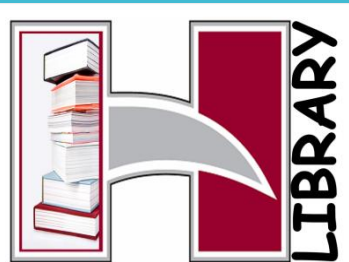

This presentation shows how to cite sources in NoodleTools.

When you first open NoodleTools, the Project Tab is open.

To begin a new project, Click on "+New Project"

A "Create a new project" screen will appear. Here you

- Title your project
- Choose a citation style: MLA or APA
- Choose Citation Level:
 - choose Advanced so that you get all the content about styles.

A screenshot of the NoodleTools web interface. The browser address bar shows "https://my.noodletools.com/web/projects.html". The page title is "NoodleTools". A navigation bar at the top includes "Projects", "Dashboard", "Sources", "Notecards", and "Paper". Below this is a toolbar with buttons for "+ New project", "Copy", "Merge", "Archive", "Unarchive", "Delete", and "Undelete". The main content area is titled "My Projects" and contains a table of project entries. A red arrow points from the "+ New project" button in the toolbar to the "Create a new project" dialog box shown in the next block.

When you "Create new citation" -

NoodleTools wants to know where you found it... a database, a website, etc.

If database, use your best judgement to say where it was found..in a journal, magazine, etc. (this does not have to be perfect).

From Opposing Viewpoints In Context.

Full Text:

Peer pressure refers to the pressure people feel to conform to the prevailing behaviors in their peer groups. The related concept of peer influence is used to describe situations in which a person does something he or she would not normally do in an effort to impress or gain the

A vertical menu titled 'Tools' is shown on the right side of the page. It contains several options: 'Citation Tools' (highlighted with a red box and a red arrow), 'Highlights and Notes (0)', 'Send to Google Drive™', 'Send to OneDrive™', 'Print', and 'E-mail'. A red arrow also points from the 'Citation Tools' option to the 'Citation Tools' dialog box below.

Disclaimer:

Data elements have been formatted to meet the latest citation standards. These citations are not a replacement for the latest guidebooks or your instructor's requirements. Double-check capitalization, dates, and names and make any necessary corrections.

Most of the time you will add or create citations from Cobb Digital Library. There are two ways to do this:

1. Export from our Gale resources on Cobb Digital Library directly to NoodleTools

remember, you must check capitalization rules for APA/MLA and may need to edit the title

View/Import Sources

Here are your imported APA-style source references:

Peer Pressure. (2018). In Opposing Viewpoints Online Collection. Retrieved from text database.

Notice the capitalization in this citation is incorrect for APA style- You need to correct it on the next NT screen. The title of the article should read - Peer pressure.

Improve citation accuracy for everyone!

These references are formed using data from the vendor. If you think you spot an error, let's help them improve!

- These references look good and I won't need to edit them.
- I see an error and will make these changes:

Import

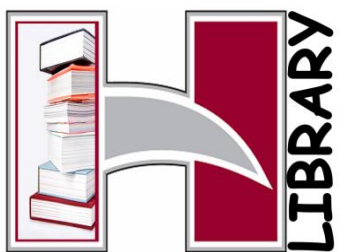

You are logged into NoodleTools as Cindy.Ford@cobbk12.org (this is not me) so you can import these references directly into yo

Project:

In this NoodleTools window you will confirm your source, and import the citation into your project.

Make sure to choose the correct project if you have more than one in NoodleTools.

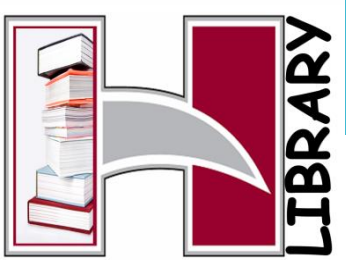

> Refresh your NT screen to see this source in your project page.

Some of the CDL databases do NOT export citations to NoodleTools. For these you will have to copy and paste the citation. So here is another way to cite with NoodleTools.

2. Paste in a citation from another source in CDL (i.e. Galileo)

remember, you must check capitalization rules for APA/MLA and may need to edit the title

When you copy and paste a preformatted citation:

- Do not assume the citation is correct! Compare to examples in the APA Publication Manual and the pull-out APA Guide above.
- Reapply text formatting like italics.
- Check capitalization of the title(s).
- For journals, look for a DOI (or search for one on CrossRef.org).

* Manually-edited citation:

Paste

Next, Copy and paste the permalink under your citation. Then submit.

What's a Permalink and why use it? It is an unchanging link to a URL. That means if you have the URL Permalink, you can easily return to your source.

Note, capitalization of the title in this citation has been edited to reflect APA style.
